Established some 55 years ago, the IOM Chamber of Commerce has experienced all the ups and downs of the Island's economy. In the past 12 months the Isle of Man Chamber of Commerce seems to have adopted a higher public profile.

With the current economic uncertainty it is dedicated to creating a climate for economic growth in our community.

In this General Election year the IOMCOC will play an active part in promoting its ideas to both candidates and to the electorate.

It will not be focusing on what are perceived fundamental community essentials - health, social care & education - but will concentrate on all other aspects of the political debate.

Chief Executive, Jane Dellar, aided by elected Council Member, Bill Mummery, will explain the structure of the organisation, its philosophy and strategy.

Some of the topics which will also be explained will be:

- the relationship with government Departments
- the much publicised call for substantially increasing inward migration
- the Wirral connection
